

INTERPRETERS:

If you need an interpreter, it is the responsibility of your hospital, GP surgery, dentist or optician to arrange for one. This will be free. It is important that you do this so that the medical staff can understand you and give you the right treatment. It is best if family members are not used to interpret in health matters, as you may not wish to discuss sensitive issues in front of a relative.